

Regulatory update on the CILB and FBC

By Jennifer Hatfield, FSPA Government Relations Consultant

At the November Construction Industry Licensing Board (CILB) meeting a declaratory statement request was put forward by a pool service contractor from North Port. The contractor asked for clarification on whether or not he can install solar pool heaters under his license. FSPA submitted a letter to the CILB stating that FSPA supported this interpretation since the scope of work includes installation or reinstallation of pool heaters, which should be interpreted as all types of pool heaters. The CILB voted to accept this interpretation. This was the last CILB meeting of 2010; they will reconvene in January.

The Florida Building Commission has been very busy as they continue holding meetings in order to finalize the 2010 Florida Building Code. The Special Occupancy TAC met and voted 7-1 to recommend for adoption the comment language FSPA submitted. The language clarified that one does not have to add the building and swimming pool fixture count when meeting the fixture requirements for building a commercial pool; rather, only one count applies if certain criteria are met.

The Energy TAC met and voted unanimously to recommend to the commission to adopt the recently revised APSP energy efficient standards (APSP-14 for portable spas and APSP-15 for residential inground pools and spas). These revisions would be put in the code verbatim as Florida-Standards in

YOUR BUSINESS

Take a deep breath

Wendy Parker Barsell
FSPA Executive Director

The mark of a successful man is one that has spent an entire day on the bank of a river without feeling guilty about it. ~Author Unknown

Another year is quickly coming to a close and while this may not have been the “best year ever” for the swimming pool industry, it was most likely better than last year. In my November column, I suggested you think about the achievements you’ve made in 2010, even those very small ones. This month, I’d like to encourage you to relax with your family and friends before another year flies by.

For many of us, the past few years have meant adjusting business plans, lifestyles and finding a new normal. Most likely you’ve been working more hours with fewer staff just to stay in business. It seems that, for the most part, things have leveled off and may begin to improve in the next 18 months.

In speaking with FSPA members lately, they tell me they are feeling better about business. Many of our chapters are holding holiday gatherings for the first time in a few years. Individual businesses are finding ways to thank employees for helping keep the doors open by taking on additional work when staff levels were decreased. Now is the time to take a deep breath and enjoy the last month of 2010.

You may be thinking, “She has no idea how much I must do for this business and relaxing just isn’t on the list.” And you’re right, each business is different but every person needs a break to clear their mind and regroup in order to maintain success. Maybe spur of the moment things aren’t possible, but scheduling a Saturday with your kids, a date night with your spouse, a Sunday watching sports with a group of friends or even just a day to yourself is possible. While you’re doing these things stay in the moment and enjoy it. Happy New Year!

If people concentrated on the really important things in life, there’d be a shortage of fishing poles. ~Doug Larson

PRESIDENT’S COLUMN

You have a voice

Eva Adcock
FSPA President

I recently discovered that the movie “The Sound of Music” is celebrating its 45th anniversary. Even the original cast members are amazed at the staying power that this film has. Why has this film been so successful?

Why does this film continue to touch so many hearts? (I make the assumption that we have all seen the movie at least once in the last 45 years).

In the opening scene we see that Maria, though understandably working for a higher power, doesn’t seem to be following the prescribed rules of the convent she has joined. She continues to show her individuality as she enters into her new position as governess for the Von Trapp family. This large family is uniquely disciplined and strict in all matters. Once again, she finds herself in the position of defending her non-conforming personality. She applies her strengths (song, creativity, dedication) to find balance and harmony through their original, polar-opposite positions.

The characters in this film show us the rewards of persevering through our circumstances. We have all experienced times when our bright futures seemed dark. Although I have not heard anyone break out in song, it may be just what we need! The theme song “Climb Every Mountain” reminds us that it’s not one mountain but every mountain. And all of this is accomplished by using our voice in a positive, uplifting manner.

Your voice can do more than help you persevere, it can help the Association and others in the industry too. You, as a member of the FSPA, have a voice in your industry. There are chapter meetings, quarterly state Board meetings throughout Florida, officers, employees, and volunteers eager to hear your voice. Even if you don’t sing like Julie Andrews, you have something to say and we want to hear it!

The ending of “The Sound of Music” is actually the beginning of a lifetime of “The Sound of Music.” I learned that the Von Trapp family is still singing together, generations later. Fiction imitates life; perhaps that is why the movie has staying power.

INSURANCE UPDATE

Florida workers' compensation rates increase for 2011

By David Griffiths, Insurance By Ken Brown

After seven consecutive years of rate decreases since passing the 2003 Workers' Compensation Reform Act, the Florida Office of Insurance Regulation recently announced an average 7.8% rate increase for new and renewal policies effective January 1, 2011.

The Reform Act was designed to reduce litigation, provide greater compliance and enforcement authority for the state to combat fraud, revise certain indemnity benefits for injured workers, increase medical reimbursements for physicians and surgical procedures, and increase the availability and affordability of coverage.

The results (which dropped Florida's workers' compensation rates by a whopping 64.7%) also brought Florida from one of the top two or three states in the nation for having the highest rates, to a state with one of the lowest.

Referring to the 2011 rate increase Florida Insurance Commissioner recently stated, "The rate increase that has been justified would still give Florida the lowest rates in the southeast, and likely keep us in the top 10 nationally for most affordable workers' compensation insurance."

The table below shows the rates of some of the most frequently utilized classes in the swimming pool service and construction industries. The rates of 2003 reflect the "high water mark" before the Reform Act, those of 2010 reflect the lowest Florida has seen in decades, and of course, those of 2011 reflect what lies ahead.

With an average rate change there is allowance for some rates to change more than others. As you can see the rates for both class code 5223 and 9014 increased by 19% and 11% respectively which is much higher than the average. Each classification is analyzed by insurance actuaries for rate adequacy based on recent experience.

Since workers' compensation premiums are almost exclusively driven by payroll, the insurance industry has experienced a significant loss in revenues over the past two or three years as Florida's economy has slowed. When that loss is combined with an increase in both frequency of workers' compensation claims filed and severity of those claims (add to that the increase in litigated cases and fraudulent cases) something had to be done. In order to protect the viability of the marketplace the state felt they needed to make a slight adjustment to the rates and this is the result.

There are several measures a business can take to incorporate discounts to help reduce these rates. We encourage you to consult with your agent to be sure you are taking full advantage of any discounts you may be eligible for.

Hopefully this is a one time correction and, in the very near future, Florida's economy is once again able to flourish!

The new, energy-efficient pump law and what it means to the service industry

By Michael Evans, The Pool Pleaser

The new law that will become effective July 2011 for manufacturers and December 31, 2011 for contractors seems to be raising a few eyebrows. In these turbulent economic times where money is tight, convincing a customer to make a pricey upgrade is not an easy task. However, it is our responsibility to not only educate the consumer on the benefits of these new pumps but also to show them how the investment will pay off in their immediate future. With an average of 50% - 80% savings on their electric bill they will not only recoup the initial investment in approximately 10-12 months, but they will then continue to save money thereafter.

The laws are not going away, in fact, they are only becoming more and more stringent as we look for better ways to "go green." Therefore, we all need to get on board and embrace it. During my 21 years in the industry, I have seen and implemented many different changes and improvements, some good and some not. After fully researching this law, I believe that this change will benefit everybody.

The next important step will be deciding which option is best for your customer. The decision will be based on two simple factors: the horsepower of their current motor and the age of the plastics. If they choose to only replace their current motor, it is important to explain that it is already preprogrammed and not adjustable. It also will only handle up to 1.25 horsepower. This will only work for the pool that has a basic system. For some customers, this will be a more cost-effective choice.

For the majority of our customers with multiple systems such as water features, solar heating, floor systems, etc., the complete variable-speed pump will be the better option. It is fully programmable, has the capability to handle up to three horsepower, and has the largest electricity savings. There is also an upgrade that has a safety vacuum release system that detects drain blockage and automatically shuts down the pump.

It will also be beneficial to explain that

Legislative update

By Jennifer Hatfield, FSPA Government Relations Consultant

Election results in Florida and across the country were quite momentous, and for the Florida Swimming Pool Association the night included a first for the organization, one of its own members was elected to the Florida House of Representatives.

Larry joins three others from the construction industry elected this year. Jeff Brandes, a lumber dealer, was elected in HD 52, also in the Pinellas area; Keith Perry, a roofing contractor, was elected to HD 22, covering parts of Ocala and Gainesville; and Tom Goodson, a transportation builder, was elected to HD 29 from the space coast area.

Another major victory for the construction industry was the overwhelming defeat of Amendment 4, the constitutional ballot initiative that would have required a taxpayer funded referendum for all changes to local comprehensive land use plans. The "Vote No on 4" campaign succeeded based on a well thought out plan of action.

Other Florida election highlights:

- Three ballot initiatives did reach the 60 percent threshold needed for passage: The two "fair district" amendments passed, providing re-districting guidelines to the legislature for the 2012 redistricting process, and Amendment 2 passed, which gives a property tax break to military personnel deployed overseas.
- Republicans swept the cabinet races with Rick Scott elected as governor, Pam Bondi as attorney general, Jeff Atwater as chief financial officer, and Adam Putnam as agriculture commissioner.
- In the Florida House and Senate, Republicans gained enough seats to now have a veto-proof majority and they held a mini special session on November 15 to revive nine bills and a budget appropriation that Gov. Crist vetoed over the summer. Republicans now have a 28-12 majority in the Senate and an 81-39 majority in the House.

- Florida is sending eight newly elected congressmen/women to Washington following the national momentum to oust many incumbents.
- Former Florida Speaker of the House Marco Rubio coasted to his U.S. Senate victory over challengers Gov. Crist and U.S. Congressman Kendrick Meek.

On Tuesday, November 16, the 2010 Organizational Session was held. The newly elected state House and Senate members were sworn in and Senate President Mike Haridopolos and Speaker of the House Dean Cannon officially took possession of each chamber's top position. Following the organizational session, which

Two-speed pumps and how to meet upcoming regulations

By David Pruette, David Pruette's Electrical Services

As you've probably heard by now, there is a new requirement effective at the end of 2011 for filtration pumps rated one HP or over to

(a) have a minimum of two speeds

(b) to automatically revert back to low speed within 24 hours or one normal cycle, whichever is less and

(c) to only run during off-peak periods.

These can be accomplished using two-speed or variable-speed pumps. For this article, I am going to concentrate on the two-speed option and, specifically, how to control it.

Let's look at what this means from the electrician's point of view. What used to be an easy swap of the motor itself now requires more electrical changes to be made. Here are a few ideas from the most basic way to meet the code up to automation.

The first change that has to take place is the addition of another "hot" conductor in the whip feeding the motor. This is required to feed the additional speed.

The most basic way to meet the code requirement for the pump to return to low speed is to add a twist timer that will override the pump for the amount of time chosen on the timer itself. This is a manual control and still requires a standard timer for the normal operation of the pump. I have not found one of these rated for more than six hours.

The next step up would be to add another mechanical timer that will control the two-speed function daily. This is also in addition to the standard mechanical timer. This timer can be set to automatically engage the high speed function and revert back to low speed when set to do so.

The last step before getting into automation is an electronic timer with two or more functions. The most popular has three functions and can be set to a mode that recognizes the two-speed function. The first function turns the pump on and off and the second function engages and disengages the high speed. This timer can be set for several operations per day per function.

These are not the only options available, but they are what I consider the most practical.

Of course, there is no reason to wait until the end of the year for your customers to start saving energy and money by using two-speed pumps. The savings can be substantial when you consider what is called the Affinity Law. This law states that when you reduce your pump speed by one-half, you pump half the water but reduce your power consumption down to one-eighth. You could double your run time and still save 75%. If you cut your speed to one-third and triple your run time, you can save over 88%.

Take a look back at last month's energy article by Jim Stevens for more great savings calculations.

These new requirements are a great opportunity to help your customer save money and drive new revenue for your business.

CPSC interpretive rule defining "Public Accommodations Facility"

On October 14, the Consumer Product Safety Commission voted to publish for public comment the new proposed interpretive rule drafted by staff on "public accommodations facility" for purposes of enforcing the Virginia Graeme Baker Pool and Spa Safety Act. The proposed rule was published in the Federal Register on October 22, 2010 (75 Fed. Reg. 65263).

The proposed rule would adopt a different definition of "public accommodations facility" from the proposed interpretation issued last March (<http://edocket.access.gpo.gov/2010/2010-5130.htm>). The new proposed definition would define "public accommodations facility" as "an inn, hotel, motel, or other place of lodging, including, but not limited to, rental units rented on a bi-weekly or weekly basis." Pools or spas located on "public accommodations facilities" are considered "public" pools or spas for purposes of enforcing the Virginia Graeme Baker Pool and Spa Safety Act.

CPSP invites public comments on this proposed interpretative rule through December 21. Instructions can be found here: <http://edocket.access.gpo.gov/2010/2010-26520.htm>

Insurance by Ken Brown donates $5,000 to FSPA Scholarship Fund

Each year the Florida Swimming Pool Association gives out scholarship awards to further the education of dependents of member company owners and employees. Application requirements include a 3.0 grade point average or better, three letters of recommendation, transcripts, SAT / ACT scores, a research paper and an essay.

Each year, Insurance by Ken Brown donates $5,000 dollars to the scholarship fund and it is then matched by the FSPA. On September 17, Ken Brown presented President Eva Adcock with this year's donation during the Board of Directors' meeting.

Every year more than $20,000 is distributed to scholarship recipients from throughout the state. For the 2010-2011 academic year, 21 scholarships were awarded. During the June Board of Directors' meeting several recipients were in attendance and received award certificates.

Thank you, Ken Brown, for supporting this program.

Donations to the scholarship fund can be made at any time by contacting the state office at 800-548-6774.

FSPA member elected to Florida House

Relations Consultant, was happy to hear of Larry's victory.

Hatfield said, "It's great for the industry to have representation in Tallahassee. Larry is someone who understands our issues intimately. He will be able to educate other legislators on the issues affecting the pool and spa industry, and hopefully they will look to him with their questions."

Larry Ahern has a long history in the pool and spa industry; in his twenties he started his own company, a swimming pool maintenance business, and today he owns a swimming pool remodeling and commercial fountain business. He also sits on the Swimming Pool Board for Examining Adjustments and Appeals for Pinellas County.

As a small business owner Larry has created jobs and balanced budgets and understands the many issues small business owners are facing, as well as those specific to the construction industry.

His priority is to get the economy back on track and folks working again.

"Ultimately, being a Republican and a conservative, the more we can do to keep money in the pockets of the people and fraud out of government, the more jobs can be made," Representative Ahern said.

Larry also wants to reduce government's size and encourage fiscal responsibility.

He decided to run for office for several reasons saying, "A lot had to do with business principles and practices that should be applied to government. Performance-based measurement is used in business; shouldn't we see that in government?"

He went on to say, "They will have to find a way to get more with less money and business people understand that more than anyone."

Larry's new position can certainly affect the swimming pool industry. If someone in the industry is in the public eye and gathers admiration, the perception of the industry will be raised.

Representative Ahern sees additional effects saying, "There is always something happening in energy and conservation and there can be unforeseen consequences of other bills."

Having the perspective of an industry member involved in the process can help prevent unrealized consequences from occurring. Larry hopes that people will also come to him with legislation that will affect businesses like his and those of his peers in the pool industry.

Larry also wanted to be sure to thank the FSPA and his local chapter for all their support.

Representative Ahern said, "People sent money and got behind me and volunteered their time. That inspires you and gives the energy to keep going. Having such support goes a long way for someone new (to running for office)."

Unenforceable code provisions successfully removed from IECC

By Jennifer Hatfield, FSPA Government Relations Consultant

Over the summer the Association of Pool & Spa Professionals (APSP) reviewed proposals submitted by the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) for the 2012 International Energy & Conservation Code (IECC) that would have made changes to the current pool energy requirements found in the 2009 IECC and which many states, including Florida, adopt in some fashion. APSP put forth several public comments on the DOE proposals.

The DOE proposals lumped all hot tubs and spas into the same category with pools for efficiency requirements and required R-12 insulated covers for pools, spas, and hot tubs capable of being heated to 90 degrees. These provisions were problematic and needed clarification that inground, permanently installed spas fell under different requirements from portable spas and needed the R-12 cover requirement removed because there are no R-12 covers in existence for inground application. Further, although portable spas have R-12 covers in many cases, they are tested as a unit for energy efficiency and again needed to be pulled out separately.

The ICC annual expo and hearings were held in Charlotte, North Carolina the week of October 25. At first it appeared the two-thirds vote needed would be near impossible due to the fact many did not understand the concerns and problematic provisions within the DOE proposal. Throughout the week an effort was mounted to educate the voters on the problematic provisions and turn the tide in our favor. In short, the two-thirds vote needed to remove these provisions in both the residential and commercial pool sections was achieved. In addition, new relationships with not only the DOE, but other energy efficient groups were established and the industry looks forward to working with them on future energy efficient code changes.

to get the most out of the variable-speed pumps, you would want to implement an automation system as well. These automated controllers allow the service technician to set the pump to the appropriate RPMs, therefore not only making it easier on the customer but also utilizing the system to its full potential. When the law goes into effect, pumps that filter water will be required to have a time switch installed and set to run only during off-peak periods.

Simply said, the sooner we all embrace and implement the new law, the sooner we can save our customers money. Making our customers happy keeps them coming back.

Regulatory update on CILB and FBC

the Appendix section of the Energy Code, providing additional guidance needed to achieve the energy requirements mandated by Florida Law.

The Plumbing TAC and Swimming Pool Subcommittee met and in a very close vote chose not to recommend adoption of the revised alternative language comment FSPA submitted to make tweaks to the existing pool and spa language that was adopted at the August TAC meeting. The issue that kept the revised comment from obtaining enough support for a positive recommendation was limiting the ANSI-7 trigger to only when one is altering the suction side of the circulation system. It was noted that changes to the flow rate can still exist when making alterations to the return side, not just the suction side. The FSPA Existing Pool Task Force will discuss how to move forward with existing pool and spa requirements.

The full commission also met via phone on Monday, November 15 to determine whether or not to overrule a binding interpretation that said a building official was not bound to follow the DOH variance for a public pool. The FBC voted 8-6 to overrule the original binding interpretation. If no challenge is made, this ruling provides a precedent that building officials are bound by DOH variances from 64E-9; reasoning appears that this rule is purely re-stated in the building code under section 424.1.

The commission will meet one last time this year on December 6-8 in Melbourne. The members will determine whether or not to accept TAC recommendations and will listen to public comment in order to make determinations that will result in a final 2010 code. This new code is slated to go into effect December 31, 2011.

is typically more ceremonial in nature, a special session was held the same day. With the new supermajority the Republicans hold in both chambers they have the ability to override Gov. Crist's vetoes of legislation passed during the 2010 regular session. This marked the first time in 12 years that the legislature has overridden a governor's veto.

Senate President Haridopolos and House Speaker Cannon led their newly-sworn members through three swift hours of overrides, as well as tweaking one of their own laws and approving $31.4 million in spending of stimulus money for energy-efficient air conditioning and solar panel rebates. Although most of the work involved overriding vetoes by Gov. Crist, approving the federal stimulus funds to provide energy rebates was a Crist-backed initiative. Currently there is a backlog of 13,000 solar rebate applicants awaiting their payments of nearly $52 million. Although many Republicans do not support the idea of taking stimulus money, in this case the overwhelming feeling was a promise was made to the consumers and therefore action should be taken. Gov. Crist quickly signed the measure the day after it was passed.

One of the most highly contested measures discussed during the special session was HB 1565; this bill required legislative approval of administrative rules adopted by the governor if they are deemed to have an economic effect. The opposition believes this requirement will stifle economic growth and the bill was initially vetoed by the governor. In the closest vote during the special session, the House passed the override with a 99-21 vote and the Senate passed it 32-7.

Legislators also delayed the implementation of SB 550, which requires all septic tanks to be inspected every five years. The Legislature took this bill up during the 2010 session based on receiving constituent concerns about pollution and groundwater over-pumping from springs. However, since its passage, complaints have been made about the cost; therefore, the implementation date was moved from January 1, 2011 to June 1, 2011. This will give legislators more time to study the issue and determine if further changes need to be made during the 2011 regular session.

Legislators also reversed the following Crist vetoes:

- HB 569 - removes the ban on yard trimming in landfills.
- HB 981 - changes the state law to protect agricultural land tax breaks if the land is still used for farming purposes.
- SB 1516 – requires the FL Department of Environmental Protection to create a database to track state property and buildings.

- HB 1385 – allows 4,985 petroleum-contaminated sites to be removed from the state's cleanup list if they are found not to pose a threat to drinking water supplies.
- HB 545 – eliminates a January 2011 requirement that homeowners in coastal areas disclose the home's windstorm mitigation rating to prospective homebuyers.
- SB 1842 – requires the state to notify property owners of proposed changes to state highways at least 180 days before the design is finalized and to hold a public hearing.

The Legislature also passed a memorial during the special session. It calls on congress to amend the Medicaid law and it also lays out guidelines the Legislature will follow in 2011 to revamp the billion dollar health care program for the poor, elderly and disabled. The Legislature is slated to come back for committee meetings the week of December 6 and then will meet for two weeks in January and three weeks in February before the start of the 2011 regular session.

The Florida Gulf Coast Chapter has established a new taskforce for securing a local Lee County Ordinance for a swimming pool cleaning license. With the current economy and the underground activity currently happening throughout the country, it is very important for the pool industry to have properly trained, licensed and insured service technicians. For more information or to get involved with the taskforce, please contact Mitch Brooks at the Chapter office.

The Chapter's November meeting with Brevard County's Licensing and Enforcement team was a huge success. There were 29 people at the meeting and the discussion revolved around many topics. Denise Campagna, manager of the Licensing Regulation and Enforcement Division, addressed the concerns of our industry and advised us that other trades are experiencing similar issues. Understanding the scope of work of the license holder, specialty license holders contracting with the public, aiding and abetting unlicensed activity, uniformity on permitting, and enforcement for all trades and distributors who are not helping the industry police itself were topics she addressed.

Denise also advised that the new forms homeowners must fill out to pull homeowner permits clearly identifies all the ramifications individuals take on by being their own contractor. FSPA was instrumental in passage of the legislation that provided for the new forms. Denise advised us that working with other trade associations and addressing our concerns as a group to the County Commission would carry greater weight in their willingness to assist in combating the unlicensed activity.

Joe Herb, an inspector for the county, informed the audience that we can help by identifying jobs where permits are not on sight and visible. Photos of jobs being done and advertisements along roadsides and on vehicles assist them in the prosecution of the offenders. The county has begun looking at all homeowner permits that are being filed and reviewing with the homeowners their responsibilities. Several homeowners have been cited for not being on the jobsite when work was being performed. Call county enforcement at 321-633-2058 if you see jobs being performed where permits are not visible. Compiling a list of municipalities and their inspectors will create another tool we can use in developing a program to deal with the overlaps that exist, as the county does not have jurisdiction in some areas.

The Chapter has always had a fantastic relationship with Denise's department and thanks her for making her department available for the informative meeting.

The Chapter will begin compiling information and working with the county to identify contacts in the other trades so we can begin a dialog to address where we go from here.

The Chapter Christmas Party will be held at the Patrick Air Force Base Blockhouse on Saturday, December 4; so please mark your calendars. Admission is $5 per person. Food, prizes and karaoke will be on tap for the evening and, as usual, there will be drinks available at the cash bar. This event is underwritten by the Chapter to ensure that the cost is nominal for you and your guests; so please take advantage and enjoy the camaraderie, food, singing and dancing festivities with us.

Thank you for the opportunity to serve as your Chapter president, and on behalf of the other members of the Space Coast Board of Directors, we wish you a Merry Christmas, Happy Hanukkah and Happy New Year.

David spent his entire professional career in the pool industry. He went to work with All Pool Service and Supply in Orlando right out of high school, then was employed by Swim Systems in Oviedo and spent the last six years with Hayward/Goldline.

David has taught courses for the FSPA and Orlando Pool & Spa Show for many years.

He will be missed by many in the industry.

Education monitors needed, earn FREE CE

The 2011 Orlando Pool and Spa Show is scheduled for February 11-12, 2011 with continuing education starting on Thursday, February 10. Continuing Education is a significant element of the annual Show and volunteer monitors play a crucial role in making the program a success. FSPA invites all FSPA members to volunteer as a course monitor.

Volunteer ID checkers support course monitors by helping to verify photo identification of attendees. No portion of their CE fees will be refunded.

To see what is available for monitoring go to www.floridapoolpro.com/industry/monitor.html. The course charts show courses by meeting room – this year we request that you pick a room and monitor all the courses in that room for that day. Course descriptions are available on the Show Web site at www.OrlandoPoolShow.com. Click on “attendee information” and then on “education seminars”.

Benefits of monitoring include receiving CE credit for the courses that you monitor and your CE registration fee refunded by the FSPA for the day(s) that you monitor.

As a monitor your duties and responsibilities include:

- Arriving at the meeting room prior to start time to ensure that the speakers are set-up and all audio visual needs have been met.
- Check in attendees that are scheduled to attend the course. Check in will require attendees to present a photo ID at the door.
- Give attendees an evaluation form and copy of the course syllabus.
- Ensure that the instructor and attendees sign the attendance roster.
- Read the instructor announcement prior to the class beginning.
- Monitor seminar times to ensure they begin / end promptly.
- Collect attendee course tickets as they leave the meeting room.
- Clear speakers/attendees from meeting room when course is complete.
- Monitor the doors so no one arrives late or leaves early.

If you would like to volunteer as a monitor please indicate your preferred room choice. Assignments are on a first come first served basis so please return your course selection as soon as possible to Bernice@FloridaPoolPro.com.
